30 Pray for group members who have planted their vegetable gardens. 	The islanders were cannibals. Nobody trusted anybody else. His life was in constant danger. He had come to tell them the good news about Jesus. He wanted to translate John's Gospel into their language, but he discovered that there was no word in their language for 'trust', 'belief' or 'faith'. John Paton (1824–1907), a Scot, had travelled to the New Hebrides (a group of islands in the south-west Pacific) determined to tell the tribal people about Jesus, but he struggled to find the right word for 'faith'. One day, when his indigenous servant came in, Paton raised both feet off the floor, sat back in his chair and asked, 'What am I doing now?' In reply, the servant used a word that means, 'to lean your whole weight upon'. This became the expression that Paton used. Faith is leaning our whole weight upon Jesus ...
